(SACRAMENTO)— Bishop Jaime Soto released the following statement today concerning a information request from the state Attorney General’s office on how the diocese complies with state law on the mandatory reporting of child abuse allegations to child protective services and to law enforcement. All 12 California dioceses have been contacted and asked to preserve certain files, 6 of them, including Sacramento, have been asked to provide information to the Attorney General’s Office.

“The California Attorney General’s Office has asked all 12 Catholic dioceses around the state to preserve files and documents that concern their compliance as mandatory reporters of child abuse to local law enforcement.

“In addition, the Attorney General’s Office has asked that 6 of the 12 dioceses voluntarily produce these same documents so that the AG’s Office can monitor their compliance with the letter and spirit of the law. Sacramento is one of those dioceses.

“The Diocese of Sacramento regularly trains all mandated reporters about their obligations to report to law enforcement. Even those who are not mandated reporters are reminded of the moral obligation to be aware for the signs of child abuse and to report it when there is a reasonable suspicion an abuse as occurred.

“As is our policy, we intend to cooperate with the Attorney General’s request and will work out the details with them directly.”

(NB - A copy of the letter from the Attorney General’s Office is attached)
