Virtual Events + Perks

See You Online!
Although we can’t meet up with you in person right now, KQED is offering thought-provoking and fun events. Sink into your sofa and enjoy a virtual screening or a listen or watch party with us. For the most current list of July KQED events, please visit kqed.org/events.

Catch KQED virtual events like this Check, Please! Bay Area watch party that recently aired.

KQED Partners with the San Francisco Public Library
Every Wednesday at 11am this summer
San Francisco Public Library’s learning program, Summer Stride, is back, virtually, with ebook recommendations and activities to keep young minds active throughout the summer. Enjoy the talents of your favorite artists through exciting performances and interactive workshops every Wednesday at 11am. Check the library’s calendar for upcoming artists. Visit sfpl.org/summerstride.

Jewish Film Institute’s Cinegogue Summer Days Event
Thursday, July 16, through Monday, July 19
From opening night at the drive-in to a unique virtual silent film scoring by Bay Area musicians to free filmmaker showcases, the world’s oldest and largest Jewish Film Festival is pleased to offer JFI’s Cinegogue (pronounced like the word synagogue) Summer Days Event. KQED members can use code KQED20 for 20% off all paid ticketed events. For event information and show times, go to jfi.org.
KQED Takes Home Two Webby Awards

We're proud to announce that KQED has won two 2020 Webby Awards. One is for The Voicebot Chronicles, an interactive storytelling series produced solely for smart speakers, and the other is for If Cities Could Dance, the digital video series that invites dancers nationwide to interpret and evoke the spirit and cultural legacies of their cities.

Sometimes called the Oscars of the internet, the Webby Awards are the leading international awards honoring excellence online with prizes. Winners for the following awards were chosen by a group of more than 2,000 judges through the International Academy of Digital Arts and Sciences.

KQED News won in the Apps, Mobile & Voice category for Best Writing for The Voicebot Chronicles. Hosted by Chloe Veltman and produced by Lowell Robinson, Bianca Taylor, Erika Kelly and Rob Speight, the first-of-its-kind series explores how to navigate a world where humans are becoming increasingly more reliant on voice technology. The story is responsive to users, who are given prompts and asked a host of questions as part of the story.

The KQED Arts digital video series If Cities Could Dance won a Webby in the Video category for Travel & Lifestyle. The If Cities Could Dance production team, which includes Kelly Whalen, Claudia Escobar, Charlotte Buchen Khadra and Masha Pershay, has collaborated with local filmmakers in Detroit; Minneapolis; Washington, D.C.; Memphis; New Orleans; San Juan, Puerto Rico; and other cities. This is the series' second Webby Award in two years. The series' third season premiered on May 5, 2020. All episodes are available for free at kqed.org/arts and the KQED Arts YouTube channel.

KQED also received a nomination in the Video category for Science & Education for its digital video series Deep Look. Presented in collaboration with PBS Digital Studies, Deep Look reveals the small and often hidden worlds in nature. The production team behind Deep Look includes host Laura Klivans, series producer Craig Rosa, lead producer and cinematographer Josh Cassidy, coordinating producer Gabriela Quirós and producers Jenny Oh and Mike Seely.

A View on the Virus: Burying the Dead in New York City

Airs Wednesday, July 1, at 8pm
New York City has been hit extremely hard by the coronavirus pandemic. In a series of audio diaries sent from his New York apartment, former director of the United States Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Dr. Tom Frieden provides his unique insight on the unfolding situation around the world and on the ground in the United States’ epicenter. We also hear from Clive Anderson, a funeral director. The volume of coronavirus cases has overwhelmed his small funeral home in New York. In “normal” times, he would average four funerals a week; now he’s doing six a day. These deeply personal audio diaries shed light on the human toll of the pandemic.

How Might Coronavirus Reshape Geopolitics? Intelligence Squared U.S.

Airs Wednesday, July 8, at 8pm
This month’s debate from Intelligence Squared looks at how the coronavirus will impact geopolitics on a global scale, particularly looking at China’s position as a global power. By providing material assistance to struggling nations, organizing world leaders, and publicizing its response to the coronavirus as aggressive and well managed, some predict China could gain influence and power after this crisis. Others argue the mismanagement and lack of transparency around the virus, as well as the economic slowdown and domestic unrest around lockdown policies, will spark lasting mistrust and condemnation. Tune in as debaters take up the issue.

Podcasts

What are the best podcasts to listen to right now? We asked Olivia Allen-Price, host and editor of KQED's Bay Curious, what she recommends. Here are her picks.

STARTER EPISODE

“Drew Banga’s Musical Notes on Fatherhood”
This podcast makes me love the Bay Area. Host Pendarvis Harshaw interviews some of the most fascinating people about the art they make and the work they do. You’ll meet a doula helping Black clients tired of being underserved by the medical establishment and a music producer who balances fatherhood with his art.

STARTER EPISODE

“Classic Cartoon Sound Effects!”
This show explores the stories behind interesting sounds, and it always opens up my mind to something I’ve never thought about before. This includes how there was once a purpose to the tones that play when you dial a phone and how cartoons created an entire language of sound not found in the natural world.

STARTER EPISODE

“Why I Steal”
The name of this podcast makes clear what it’s about — all the uncomfortable things we don’t normally talk about. One week is about the emotional cost of carrying student loans, and the next, why people choose not to have sex. Host Anna Sale lives in the East Bay, so you’ll occasionally catch some Bay Area flavor too.

Listen via Apple Podcasts, Google Play, Stitcher, the NPR One app, Spotify or wherever you get your podcasts.
Sustaining members and donors at the $60/year level can choose from more than 2,000 exclusive KQED and PBS shows in our on-demand library with KQED Passport. Staff Picks

Dive into Summer with The Durrells in Corfu on Masterpiece
As we prepare for a summer full of unknowns, I’m planning a virtual vacation to the Greek island of Corfu with the colorful Durrell family. With KQED Passport, you can binge all four seasons of The Durrells in Corfu on Masterpiece. The series follows the adventures of the real-life Durrell family during the four years (1935-1939) they lived on Corfu. Struggling financially after her husband’s death, Mrs. Durrell makes the bold choice to sell the house and move her family from dreary England to Corfu, where the cost of living is much lower and the skies are much sunnier. With a family like hers, it is definitely an adventure, but a bright, charming and heartwarming one. That’s something I can look forward to now even if I can’t make the trip to Greece myself.
—Meredith Speight, KQED Director of Television Programming

Dive into Summer with The Great British Baking Show on Masterpiece
See the full season of The Great British Baking Show before the champion is crowned. Each Friday starting July 17 at 8pm on KQED 9, we’ll broadcast the final episodes of each season of The Great British Baking Show as challengers compete to become the Star Baker. Want to see how they got there? Binge the whole season with KQED Passport.

Dive into Summer with Endeavour
Binge Season 3 of the Frankie Drake Mysteries detective series beginning July 10 before it comes to KQED Plus for broadcast. This program will only be available for streaming with PBS Passport; there’s no Free Video on Demand streaming. (Seasons 1 and 2 are now available for catch-up streaming with PBS Passport.)

Meet the Radical Monarchs: Empowering Girls of Color

“Self-empowerment and self-worth for young girls of color is critical. How do we create alternate spaces where that can happen?” To address this need, two women of color — Anayvette Martinez, who’s quoted here, and Marilyn Hollinquest — co-founded an organization in Oakland, California, called the Radical Monarchs, an alternate to the Scout movement for girls of color. Its mission and vision: “To create opportunities for young girls to form fierce sisterhood, celebrate their identities and contribute radically to their communities. And to empower young girls of color so that they stay rooted in their collective power, brilliance and leadership in order to make the world a more radical place.”

We Are the Radical Monarchs, a new POV documentary, follows the first troop, a group of young girls between the ages of 8 and 13, for more than three years as they complete units on social justice and earn badges for achievements, including being LGBTQ+ allies, protecting the environment and working for disability justice. The documentary also focuses on the two founders, who face the challenge of growing the organization before and after the 2016 election.

An Official Selection at the SXSW Festival, We Are the Radical Monarchs is a co-presentation of Latino Public Broadcasting. It airs on Monday, July 20, at 9pm on KQED 9. —Ellyn Hament

DID YOU KNOW?
• Actor Danny Glover was an organizer of the 1968 San Francisco State University student strike, which led to the creation of the first university-backed Black Studies program in the U.S.
• The Latina/Latino Studies department (originally Raza Studies) was formed in 1969 at State and became the first department of its kind on any four-year college campus.
• In 1979, a group of women bought a four-story building in The Mission and established The Women’s Building, the first women-owned and operated community center in the U.S.

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE
All the King’s Men
Saturday, July 11, at 10:08pm on KQED 9
Welcome to the world of politics, film noir style, in this classic, award-winning 1949 film. Broderick Crawford stars as a backwoods Southern lawyer turned governor who fights corruption for a while until, well, things change. Told from a reporter’s viewpoint, the film is based on politician Huey Long’s life.

America ReFramed: Deej
Sunday, July 26, at 9pm on KQED Plus
Meet DJ “Deej” Savarese. Once a “profoundly disabled” foster kid, his future looked bleak. Through a series of fortunate events, his life changed, and he became a gifted advocate for nonspeaking autistics, standing up for people who are often dismissed as incompetent because they’re neurologically diverse.

JULY PICKS

A Place to Call Home: Season 3
Tuesday, July 28, at 8pm on KQED Plus
Strap on your seatbelt: It’s the start of a new season for this beloved Australian period piece. George has been shot and only two people know what happened. Meanwhile, Anna is dealing with Andrew’s allegations — on her honeymoon.

KQED’s New Member Information Policy
KQED has updated its membership list policy, which outlines the use of our list while ensuring our active control in safeguarding against unauthorized use. While the policy hasn’t changed our practice of exchanging your name with other nonprofits, KQED’s participation in cooperative databases to identify best prospects for new members as well as reactivation of former members is new. By participating, you may receive fewer solicitations without jeopardizing critical revenue support for KQED programming. As always, we value your contribution and understand if you don’t want to participate in either of these programs. If you’d like to opt out of list exchange or cooperative database activity, please contact Member Services at 415-553-2150 or email member@kqed.org and we’ll update your account information to reflect your preferences. You can find the new policy online at kqed.org/information-policy.
