VIRTUAL EVENTS

The Future of Campus Policing

Wednesday, April 21, at 6pm

Join KQED and CalMatters for a wide-ranging discussion with students and administrators about how we rethink the role of law enforcement officers on college and university campuses. After a year marked by protest over police brutality, racism and unaccountability, how should campus safety be reformed?

➔ Meet Forum's Mina Kim

Over the past decade, Mina Kim has become one of KQED's most familiar and beloved radio voices. A native of Canada, Mina grew up in St. John's in Newfoundland. She started at KQED as an intern. When the station began expanding its local news coverage in 2010, she became a general assignment news reporter, then health reporter for The California Report before becoming Forum's Friday host at the end of 2014. Over this past summer, she took over daily hosting duties of the statewide 10am hour of Forum, which now is carried by other public radio stations statewide. Mina and the Forum team are building the show to help create a space for Californians to have a daily conversation about current affairs and the state's experience by centering on race, justice and equality. —Peter Cavagnaro

With the recent format change to the second hour of Forum, you're no longer speaking just to a Bay Area audience, but to Californians up and down the state. How has that changed the conversations for you?

Having people from more regions of the state join our daily Forum conversation has made me feel more connected to the "nation of California" and made my world feel bigger at a time when the pandemic forced it to shrink.

One of the themes for the second hour of Forum is to look at current events through the lens of race, justice and equality. How has your lived experience prepared you for the conversations?

My producers and I are often surprised at how personally connected we are to our show topics. I'm the daughter of Korean immigrants and lost my dad to a heart attack at the age of 8. My teen years saw a lot of emotional and financial struggles. And, of course, the recent increase in the number of anti-Asian hate incidents has been no less painful for being expected.

The format of the show is not the only major change to Forum. Shelter-in-place has required you to host from your home for the past year. How has that gone for you — both as host and as a mother?

I haven't had any "BBC Dad" moments yet though a few close calls! All three of my kids have been home with me and my spouse throughout the pandemic, so yeah, it's been hectic. He likes to joke we're running a radio station, law firm and childcare center out of our house.

Living on the Edge: East Palo Alto's Climate Threats and Solutions

East Palo Alto is one of the places in California most vulnerable to sea-level rise in the bay, and one of those least able to fund protective measures for its residents. The small city sits along the bay at a location where the dynamics of bay currents point wave action right to its shoreline. Mapping by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission shows a swath of East Palo Alto neighborhoods inundated by 2050 from sea-level rise and storm surges.

"We want this series to be useful to the residents of East Palo Alto so we will be asking questions about what issues they care most about and want to know more about from our reporters — whether it's about sea-level rise, climate change in general, solutions or other topics. We'll also look at structural issues of environmental racism, which is often at the heart of why some communities are more vulnerable to climate impacts than others. And, of course, we'll also ask who could be doing something about the problems," says KQED Science Senior Editor Kat Snow.

Some 30,000 people live there, including residents who fled other countries because of climate change and now face the same threat here.

Community advocates are organizing the majority Latino population, along with Blacks, Native Americans and whites. Meanwhile, the largely low-income community sits in the shadow of some of the world's most powerful tech companies.

KQED investigates East Palo Alto's climate threats, solutions and lessons to learn for California's adaption to sea-level rise in a series on Morning Edition on KQED Public Radio on April 19–23, at 6:22am and 8:22am. You'll find the stories online at kqed.org/climate.

PODCASTS

What are the best podcasts to listen to right now?
We asked Alexander Gonzalez, local news features editor for KQED News. Here are his picks.

STARTER EPISODE

"Partying During COVID, and Why Can't I Get the Shot?"

The California Report Magazine produces a weekly sonic tapestry of the people, places and ideas that shape the Golden State. One of the show's specialties is intimate portraits, and this episode delivers. A KQED reporter shares a moving first-person account about living with a difficult roommate during the COVID-19 pandemic.

STARTER EPISODE

"We (Still) Don't Say That"

Since the pandemic has limited international travel, I've been turning back to my favorite episodes of NPR's Rough Translation. Stories from around the world reflect conversations we're having at home. Through captivating interviews, this episode explores the complicated relationship between race and language in France.

STARTER EPISODE

"The Case for Sweatpants"

The United States started as an experiment, and that premise drives the storytelling in The Experiment by The Atlantic and WNYC Studios. Stories from an unfinished country take listeners in surprising directions — like in this episode about sweatpants. History, cultural commentary and fun sound design make The Experiment a worthwhile listen.

Staff Picks

Masterpiece continues its 50th anniversary season with another stunning drama premiering this month. Atlantic Crossing is an epic drama based on the little-known true story of the relationship between Norwegian Crown Princess Martha and President Franklin Roosevelt during World War II. Kyle MacLachlan (Twin Peaks, Sex and the City) stars as Roosevelt, opposite Swedish star Sofia Helin (The Bridge) as the courageous Martha, who flees the Nazis with her three young children and lives under Roosevelt's protection. The eight-part series shows war from a woman's point of view and ranges back and forth across the North Atlantic throughout World War II, depicting momentous events in the changing fortunes of Norway, Great Britain and the United States. I was hooked from the first episode, and Passport makes it easy to binge with all episodes available to stream starting on the night of the premiere (April 4).

Atlantic Crossing, an Epic New Masterpiece Series, Launches

As a KQED nerd for years before I joined the staff, I love that I can preview some upcoming shows early. Recently, I watched the first episode of the new Atlantic Crossing, an eight-episode Masterpiece series that premieres on April 4. As a fan of historical dramas, especially history I know little about, this one is completely gripping, gorgeous to look at and epic in the way Masterpiece shows tend to be.

Based on a true, rarely told story, Atlantic Crossing focuses on the relationship between the Norwegian Crown Princess Martha and President Franklin Delano Roosevelt (FDR) during World War II. The drama begins with neutral Norway's reluctant entry into the war. As the story progresses, a relationship between the princess and President Roosevelt deepens, and issues of war, diplomacy, desire and jealousy unfold. There are strong performances, and the period clothing and sets are stunning.

You can catch the Atlantic Crossing series starting on Sunday, April 4, at 9pm on KQED 9. If you want to see it all at once and you're a member at the Passport level, you're in luck. Beginning April 4, the same night it's broadcast, you can binge-stream the whole series via video-on-demand. —Ellyn Hamant

DID YOU KNOW?

- FDR made a secret trip to the Bay Area in 1942 to get a firsthand account of military production and citizen morale during WWII. Newspapers, including The San Francisco Chronicle, agreed to keep silent on the story for national security concerns.
- FDR made history when he appointed Francis Perkins as Secretary of Labor. She was the first woman to hold a cabinet post in a U.S. presidential administration.
- In 1944, FDR was elected to a fourth term. It's unlikely a president will serve that long again; the 22nd Amendment, enacted in 1951, limits presidents to two terms.

COMING IN MAY

American Masters: Amy Tan, Unintended Memoir

Monday, May 3, at 9pm on KQED 9

Celebrated for her bestselling novel The Joy Luck Club, Amy Tan paved the way for Asian American representation in literature. In this American Masters program, Tan unpacks her personal traumas and reveals how her writing has helped her heal. Tune in to get an inside look at this Oakland native turned global icon.

APRIL PICK

All Creatures Great and Small on Masterpiece

Thursday, April 13, at 9pm on KQED Plus

Did you miss the new adaptation of All Creatures Great and Small on Masterpiece? Here's a chance to see it — or see it again. Travel to the rolling green Yorkshire countryside and meet James Herriot, the young veterinarian whose first day is full of surprises of both the animal and nonanimal varieties.

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE

Inherit the Wind

Saturday, April 17, at 8pm on KQED 9

When a Tennessee educator teaches evolutionary science rather than theology, he's brought to trial in this 1960 courtroom drama based on The Scopes "Monkey" trial. Full of impassioned speeches by Spencer Tracy and Fredric March, it also features Gene Kelly as journalist H.L. Mencken and Dick York as the defendant. Decades later, it still delivers a powerful punch.

NOVA: Picture a Scientist

► Wednesday, April 14, at 9pm on KQED 9

Women make up less than a quarter of STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) professionals in the U.S.; the number is even smaller for women of color, but a growing group of researchers are working to change that. Follow along as they expose long-standing discrimination and work to make science more inclusive.

➔ Meet Forum's Mina Kim

Have there been any silver linings?

My kids are 10, 5 and 2 years old. This extra time with them has truly been a gift. They also made lockdowns a lot more entertaining.

What are you most looking forward to when things return to normal?

A big dinner with friends around our dining table. And a date night with my spouse. We literally haven't had a date night for a year!

Who has been the most memorable Forum guest for you so far?

No disrespect to our guests, but the moments that tend to stay with me are more often from our listeners. They include Frank, who choked up talking about the special time he's been able to have with his grandkids; 10-year old Maggie calling on behalf of her Spanish-speaking parents to find out if they could get COVID again; and Betty recalling a deeply wounding racist experience.

Is there someone, or some topic, that you're hoping to cover this year?

The team and I want to cover how the pandemic has altered Californian's lives and perspectives in lasting ways, especially those hit hardest by injustices and personal and economic losses. We want to be honest about the pain and the silver linings. If you were to ask me what story outside the pandemic I believe must not fade from view, it would be the impact of the systematic ripping apart of families at the Southern border. This is a story that shook me to my core, and my hope is that the coverage this year can be that all the families have been reunited and work is being done to truly address the trauma.

Dinosaur Train: Adventure Island

Premieres Monday, April 12 and repeats all week

Join the Pteranodon family on a trip to Adventure Island in this 90-minute movie. The day is packed with fun until an earthquake erupts, causing the theme park robots to malfunction. It's up to Buddy, Tiny, Shiny and Don to navigate safely across the island and reunite with their parents.

Saturday Night Movie Yentl

Saturday, April 24, at 8pm on KQED 9

It's 1904 in Eastern Europe. Yentl (Barbra Streisand), a Jewish woman, wants to study religion, but that's a right reserved for men. In this 1983 musical dramedy, she disguises herself as a man, enters a Yeshiva and falls in love, which brings with it a whole new series of complications.

Explore the Writer and the Man in Hemingway, a New Film by Ken Burns and Lynn Novick

Though his prose was simple and spare, Ernest Hemingway was a complicated man. Ken Burns and Lynn Novick explore both his personal and literary life in this new, three-part, six-hour documentary. Focusing on his life at the intersection of fame, art and celebrity with selected excerpts from his iconic short stories, novels and nonfiction, the series offers an intimate picture of a writer whose work remains influential. It also explores the myth of Hemingway as a man's man, delving into his deeply troubled and ultimately tragic life, and explores his limitations and biases as a writer.

Hemingway
Monday, April 5, at 8pm and 10pm
on KQED 9

Hemingway is sponsored by Kraw Law,
