Wicked in Concert: The Music Minus the Musical with Idina Menzel, Kristin Chenoweth and Others

The Unforgettable Season 4 Finale to Unforgotten
Save the Date: Saturday, September 25 for KQED’s Grand Opening Celebration

The renovation of KQED’s San Francisco headquarters is almost complete; it’s time to celebrate! Join us for a free, daylong, family-friendly open house and block party on Saturday, September 25, from 11am to 6pm. Be one of the first visitors to the new space. Experience popular KQED shows live onstage; food from local vendors; neighborhood arts and merchant pop-ups; live music produced by Noise Pop; behind-the-scenes chances to make your own radio, television, or podcasts with your favorite hosts — and much more. It’s a historic community party you won’t want to miss. Save the date. See you there.

For more information about the building, go to kqed/campaign21. For more details about the event, visit kqed.org/events.

KQED Wins Big During the Awards Season

We’re proud to announce that KQED took home five regional Edward R. Murrow Awards, seven Northern California Emmy® awards and one Webby Award.

KQED won five regional Edward R. Murrow Awards for excellence in journalism. The winners are Sold Out: Rethinking Housing in America, a KQED podcast exploring solutions to some of the housing challenges we face; the Voicebot Chronicles, a reporting project made exclusively for smart speakers; and KQED Reporter Sam Harnett and Co-Creator Chris Hoff’s piece “New Year’s Day Music That Hasn’t Been Heard in 500 Years” about the acoustic profile of the Hagia Sophia Cathedral in Istanbul. In addition, these two pieces won awards as well: Lesley McClurg’s story “For HIV Survivors, Pandemic Is Sad Reminder of Early Days of AIDS,” which compares the similarities between the early days of the AIDS crisis and the COVID-19 pandemic; and Older and Overlooked, a yearlong reporting project investigating how we can protect one of our state’s most vulnerable populations from wildfires.

KQED won seven Northern California Emmy® Awards across our Science, Arts & Culture and Education teams for excellence in television. This includes KQED Arts & Culture’s Dear Beloved, a virtual, pre-recorded event with musical performances by SOL Development and storytelling by three mothers who have lost children to gun violence. KQED’s favorite restaurant review show, Check, Please! Bay Area, won an Emmy® for its episode featuring the cast of the local production of Hamilton. Truly CA, a showcase of independent documentaries about California, was recognized for its episode “Out on the Inside: Transgender Women Share Stories from a California Prison.” Finally, KQED’s popular online science series, Deep Look, won three Emmy® Awards for episodes on the power of a flea’s jump, the birth of a tsetse fly and why sea slugs are environmental heroes.

KQED’s If Cities Could Dance won a Webby Award for the third consecutive year. The YouTube series invites dancers nationwide to interpret and evoke the spirit and cultural legacies of their cities through their art form.

The ‘MindShift’ Podcast Series Returns
Tackling the New Learning Landscape

After two extraordinary school years, what does the future of education look like? What do students need most to support their learning and a return to classrooms? What did teachers learn during the pandemic that they’ll want to carry forward to better their classrooms — and what will they want to scrap?

In the sixth season of the MindShift podcast, co-hosts Ki Sung and Nimah Gobir use solutions-driven storytelling to tackle relevant education issues. They include inaccurate grading practices hiding in plain sight, the harm of toxic positivity, fostering mental health and how data science could help students who have been marginalized by math instruction — all during a still uncertain return to classrooms for many students and teachers.

This new season also includes three 10-minute mini-episodes of MindShift featuring a notable educator or researcher and addressing news events in the education world as they happen. The first features a conversation with Dr. Sonja Cherry Paul who wrote the New York Times bestseller Stamped (For Kids): Racism, Antiracism, and You, which is an adaption of Ibram X. Kendi and Jason Reynolds’ best-selling book, Stamped: Racism, Antiracism, and You, aimed at young teen readers.

You can find new episodes of MindShift podcasts every other Tuesday through September 28 wherever you get your podcasts, or at kqed.org/mindshiftpodcast.

PODCAST SERIES

STARTER EPISODE

“Socialism: 101”

Socialism is a hot topic on my social feed these days, but I haven’t been able to sink into its history until this episode of Planet Money from NPR. I was particularly interested in hearing its history in the U.S. and how some socialist policies exist today in police departments, public schools and Medicare. It’s a great antidote to tl;dr (too long; didn’t read), explaining what you need to know.

STARTER EPISODE

“In Good Faith”

I’ve been anticipating the launch of On Our Watch for a while — and it exceeds my expectations. KQED and NPR put together one of the most intense investigative podcasts I’ve ever heard; this episode kicks off the series. Not only is the story and investigative journalism really compelling, the episode is sound-rich, full of sound bites from police interviews and investigations.

STARTER EPISODE

“The 7 Hardest Conversations I’ve Ever Had on This Show”

On WNYC’s Death Sex & Money podcast, Anna Sale shares the seven hardest conversations she’s had on the podcast, which already focuses on conversations about tough issues. It’s really well-made and curated with some of the best — and most intense — bits. And it offers up some great advice from Sale about how to be a good interviewer and host.

Don't Miss This

Lucy Worsley is one of my favorite public television hosts. As much as I believe I have the best job in the world, hers also seems like a dream. As the chief curator at Historic Royal Palaces, author and esteemed television host, she dives into some of history’s best stories and gets decked out in some truly amazing costumes as she brings history to life. We premiered the first three episodes of Lucy Worsley’s Royal Myths and Secrets last year, learning the true stories of Elizabeth I, Queen Anne and Marie Antoinette. All three are available now for KQED Passport members to catch up as we wait for the next three episodes to come to KQED 9. They begin on August 29 with Henry VIII’s Reformation.
—Meredith Speight, KQED Director of Television Programming

Call the Midwife, Season 9
Set in 1965, this British period drama about the medics and midwives of Nonnatus House is back. Tune in as they face new challenges, rules change and diseases return. On August 4, Passport members can binge Season 9 before Season 10 starts this fall.

Before We Die, Season 2
Binge the new eight-episode season of this Swedish drama (with subtitles) on August 5, the night of the broadcast premiere. Follow Hanna and Bjorn as they continue their hunt for the Mimica family and infiltrate The Circle. This program is only available for streaming with Passport; there’s no free video on-demand streaming.

‘Wicked in Concert’: The Musical Featuring Stellar Singers

In The Wizard of Oz, the bubbly Good Witch Glinda and the emerald-green Wicked Witch of the West were enemies, but what if it wasn’t always that way? Wicked, the book by Gregory Maguire that became a hit Broadway play, imagines a backstory, which focuses on the witches unlikely friendship, personal empowerment and what it means to be different. Wicked has been seen in more than 15 countries by more than 55 million people. And lots of its songs have made it into our collective American songbook, including “Defying Gravity,” “For Good” and “Popular.”

Wicked in Concert, which airs August 29 on KQED 9 at 9pm, plucks the music from the musical and pairs it with fresh orchestral arrangements and celebrity vocalists, including Rita Moreno and others across musical genres. Hosted by Idina Menzel and Kristin Chenoweth, who both starred in the original Broadway cast, the music is staged in intimate concert settings in Washington, D.C.; Los Angeles; and New York City. Hearing the hauntingly beautiful songs, you may find yourself melting, though not in the same way the Wicked Witch did. —Ellyn Hament

DID YOU KNOW? THEATER

- The first known play written by a Black playwright in America is believed to be The Drama of King Shotaway by William Henry Brown, who also founded the African Theatre in New York in the 1820s.
- Born in 1926, Estela Portillo Trambley was an award-winning Latinx playwright who challenged gender stereotypes in her play Day of the Swallows.
- Pulitzer Prize- and Tony Award-winning Puerto Rican playwright and composer Quiara Algeria Hudes co-wrote In the Heights with Lin-Manuel Miranda.

COMING IN SEPTEMBER

Check, Please! You Gotta Try This!

September 9, at 7:30pm on KQED 9

Host Leslie Sbrocco is back with a new spin-off series to feed your foodie soul: Check, Please! You Gotta Try This! We all have a favorite eatery, but there’s often one dish that keeps us coming back. Have you wondered what’s in the sauce, the ingredients or techniques that make it so delicious? Step into the kitchen with us as chefs share the personal stories behind their culinary creations.

Generation 9/11
► Tuesday, August 31, at 9pm on KQED 9

Of the 2,996 people who died on 9/11, about 100 were fathers of babies not yet born. Generation 9/11 follows the lives of several of these children and their families and looks at the impact of this tragedy on them as we approach the 20-year anniversary of the tragedy.
New episodes premiere daily from August 16 to 20
Join Daniel and his friends for a week of firsts in the Neighborhood of Make-Believe. Follow along as Margaret celebrates her first Thank You Day, Daniel takes his first trip to the hospital and Prince Wednesday’s brother goes away to college.

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE
Thelma and Louise
Saturday, August 7, at 8pm on KQED 9
This is the ultimate fed-up females road trip film. Disgusted with her boyfriend, waitress Louise (Susan Sarandon) persuades her friend Thelma (Geena Davis), a naïve housewife with a sexist husband, to go on an adventure. Things go wrong, and they run from the law in a cool convertible until they make an iconic exit.
