Flower Piano San Francisco Botanical Garden

Friday, September 17 to Tuesday, September 21

Flower Piano is back! The SF Botanical Garden and Sunset Piano are excited to present one of the most creative events in the Bay Area from September 17 to 21. Flower Piano will transform the Botanical Garden once again into the city's own alfresco concert hall where everyone is invited to play and listen. KQED members receive a 10 percent discount at the Garden Bookstore and Plant Arbor during Flower Piano. For tickets and more information, please go to sfbg.org.

Grand Opening Celebration POSTPONED

With COVID-19 cases rising and measures to mitigate spread being reinstated by local authorities, KQED is postponing our Grand Opening celebration, previously scheduled for September 25. KQED takes the health and well-being of our audience, staff and partners seriously. As such, we know the right thing to do is to save a gathering of this scale and nature for another day. However, we will continue to host smaller, more adaptable KQED Live events in our new headquarters. Visit kqed.org/live for details and tickets.

Dig in to ‘Check, Please! You Gotta Try This!’

Feed your foodie soul with Check, Please! You Gotta Try This!, KQED’s new spin-off series hosted by Leslie Sbrocco. Listen in as locals reveal their recommendations for the most delectable dishes in the Bay Area — from tasty appetizers and entrees to sinful desserts. These are the foods people love so much they’d stand happily in a long line to savor. And if you’re wondering why something is so delicious, the chefs will take us into their kitchens to see what’s in a dish and how it’s made, as well as share the stories behind them. Each episode is capped off by Cecilia Phillips, our ravenous roving reporter, who’s on the road to discover the Bay’s best off-the-grid dining spots.

You can catch Check, Please! You Gotta Try This! on Thursdays starting September 9 through October 28 at 7:30pm on KQED 9. Here’s a taste of what you’ll see.

September 9 (featuring special celebrity guests!)

- Grammy-winning singer-songwriter Fantastic Negrito samples the savory Omu Curry, a jet-black curry served on top of omurice, at Dela Curo (Oakland)
- Award-winning director and actor Margo Hall delights in the iconic Chicken Milanese at Garibaldi’s Restaurant (Presidio)
- Oakland Roots soccer player Max Ornstil joins 50 years of devotees of the Chocolate & Vanilla Frozen Yogurt at Yogurt Park (Berkeley)

PODCASTS

What are the best podcasts to listen to right now? We asked Amielle Major, KQED's Audience Engagement Producer. Here are her picks.

STARTER EPISODE

"Grades Have a Huge Impact, But Are They Effective?"

KQED's MindShift explores the future of learning and how we raise our kids. Our newest episode looks at how the coronavirus pandemic (and high school students failing classes at great rates) prompted educators to re-evaluate how they grade. We debunk common grading myths and suggest possible new directions.

STARTER EPISODE

"July 16, 1996"

In The Dark is an investigative podcast from APM Reports. Season 2 explores the case of Curtis Flowers, a Black man from Mississippi who was tried six times for the same crime. He spent more than 20 years fighting for his life and his exoneration. Episode 1 sets up the crime and the scope of APM's year-long investigation.

STARTER EPISODE

"The Big Shadoo"

The Improvement Association investigates the power of election fraud allegations by focusing on a cheating scandal in Bladen County, North Carolina. This first episode starts with reporter Zoe Chace receiving an invitation to visit the state from the leader of a Black political advocacy group whose name was dragged into the scandal.

Don't Miss This

Take a time machine back to the glitzy 1920s with the newest season of Frankie Drake Mysteries. The swinging music and glamorous costumes will have you instantly transported into Frankie's world. Frankie is joined by her talented partner, Trudy Clarke, and aided by ambitious morality officer Mary Shaw, as well as morgue attendant and aspiring doctor Flo Chakowitz. Watch as Frankie and her associates dive into the seedy underworld of Toronto, sniff out the bad guys and fight for recognition in their fields. It's impossible not to root for these women! Season 4 will be available for streaming for KQED Passport members starting September 3, before it comes to broadcast later this year. You can also catch up with all the previous seasons, available on KQED Passport.

New Burns' 'Muhammad Ali' Docuseries: Bigger Than Boxing, Larger Than Life

I'm not a boxing fan, but I am a major admirer of Muhammad Ali. He was a sports superstar: a three-time World Heavyweight Champion, winner of an Olympic gold medal and, in 1999, crowned "Sportsman of the Century" by Sports Illustrated and the BBC. Clearly, he was the greatest, as he boldly told us, but for me it's about the person as well as the profession. Authentically himself, Ali stood up for what he believed in regardless of the personal cost. He stepped out of the box(ing ring) to become a political activist, philanthropist, a humanitarian and much more. The man was a knockout.

Now, in a new docuseries, Ken Burns, Sarah Burns, and David McMahon take a major new look at Ali's life. Muhammad Ali airs in four "rounds" beginning on Sunday, September 19, at 8pm on KQED 9 and again at 10:15pm and continues daily through Wednesday at 8pm and 10pm. Don't miss this look at what it means to be a stellar sports star — in and out of the ring.
—Ellyn Hament

DID YOU KNOW? MUHAMMAD ALI

- He was a Grammy nominee twice for spoken-word albums: "I Am the Greatest," considered by some to be an early example of rap and a precursor to hip-hop, and a kids' album called "The Adventures of Ali and His Gang vs. Mr. Tooth Decay." He also recorded "Stand by Me" with Sam Cooke.
- Ali was very interested in magic. Also, there are unconfirmed reports that he could levitate people.
- He was scared of flying. After fighting (and winning) in San Francisco, he pawned the watch he won for a train ticket back to Kentucky to avoid getting on a plane. —Sophie Kim and NY Vinnie Richichi

COMING IN OCTOBER

Call the Midwife: Season 10

Watch your October issue for dates and times

Season 10 is here bringing with it change, excitement and challenges. It's 1966 and the women's rights movement is intensifying. Sister Julianne is determined to lift Nonnatus House out of its financial woes. Dr. Turner deals with difficult cases. Sister Monica Joan experiences a crisis of faith. And Sister Frances realizes she needs to make some changes to better connect with local women.

SEPTEMBER PICK

A Very British Murder Thursday, September 9, at 8pm on KQED Plus

Lucy Worsley, the inimitable British television historian, explores our curious relationship — an obsession for some — with British murders. Through several episodes, she explores everything from Jack the Ripper to Agatha Christie murder mysteries, lots of questions and the big ideas surrounding them.

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE

Twelve Angry Men Saturday, September 4, at 8pm on KQED 9

What do you do if you're on a jury for a murder trial and everyone but you thinks the defendant is guilty? This classic film focuses on one juror's fight for justice for a young man who killed his own father. Directed by Sidney Lumet and released in 1957, the film takes you into the world of jury deliberation and how decisions can or can't be swayed by one person's opinion.

The Future of Work

► Wednesday, September 1, at 10pm on KQED 9

The working world was tossed upside down in 2020. Is the promise of employment — part of the American Dream — still the future of work? This three-part series (also on 9/8 and 9/15) takes on our new industrial revolution, futureproofing and how work and workers are changing.

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE Shine

Saturday, September 18, at 8pm on KQED 9

Inspired by Polish-Australian pianist David Helfgott, Shine is a biopic of the musical prodigy's formative years, his struggle with mental illness and his often-difficult relationship with his father.

Geoffrey Rush, who portrayed Helfgott, won an Academy Award for Best Actor in 1997, for his performance in the lead role.
