KQED's Education Team Elevates and Amplifies Diverse Youth Voices

The 2020–2021 school year presented enormous challenges for everyone in and supporting schools. At KQED, we were honored to do our part — particularly by elevating the voices of diverse youth to a national audience. As a public media station, we seek to raise up traditionally underrepresented voices and lend our expertise to teach youth how to effectively share their perspectives. In doing so, we hope to expand KQED's general audience's understanding across generations and communities and provide the opportunity for young people to share their voices in civic spaces through public media.

One of the biggest highlights of the 2020 to 2021 school year was our inaugural Election 2020 Youth Media Challenge, which was followed by several additional Challenge topics and a public, online showcase of student media projects nationwide. And Above the Noise, Education's signature YouTube series for students, gained 2 million total views — almost half from Gen Z. To learn more about our Education team's work and impact, download the KQED Education Annual Report: 2021-2022 at kqed.org/education/annual-report.

Truly CA Films Focus on Recent Disasters and Their Impact on Teens

Truly CA is KQED's Emmy Award-winning, short-documentary showcase featuring filmmakers worldwide who tell stories specific to the Golden State. In January, the series features two short films centered on the impact of recent disasters on California teens. In Last Days at Paradise High, which airs on January 14 at 8pm on KQED 9, you'll meet two high school seniors and their teacher. The kids grapple with the classic teenage drama of fading youth — and because the fire destroyed Paradise, the added angst of searching for home after it's gone. Another short film, The Titan Rises, which airs on January 21 at 8pm on KQED 9, focuses on the Skyline High School football team in Oakland as it prepares for a delayed season due to the pandemic. Follow along as the head coach and the team navigate playing football, the life and death struggle on Oakland's streets and the toll it takes on inner-city athletes. To stream these short documentaries and others from Truly CA, please visit youtube.com/kqedarts.

What's Up for KQED Public Radio in 2022?

I'm Ernesto Aguilar and I'm honored to serve as KQED's newest Director of Radio Programming. I came to KQED on the strength of its outstanding audio, which is made possible by your generosity. We provide the reporting you trust and bring you the news, politics and arts and culture coverage you value — from Forum to Political Breakdown to our evocative newscasts. As part of our commitment to keeping KQED relevant, we also deliver podcasts, stream KQED Live events, air educational endeavors with local students as well initiatives such as KQED En Español and other series and shows. In the new year, we have even more in store for you.

Expect more of our signature journalism. We'll keep an eye on midterm elections, housing issues and pivotal Supreme Court rulings. We'll bolster the local news you rely on to keep you informed. We'll deliver news specials that will provide deeper insight into the stories you care about. And we'll help give context to what's happening in the Bay Area. The California Newsroom, a statewide news hub led by KQED, will focus on what matters most to Californians. Finally, in 2022, KQED will do more to welcome and serve diverse next-generation listeners, aiming to make them feel more at home.

As we build on this remarkable legacy for an even brighter tomorrow, feel free to reach out at kqed.org/radiofeedback. I look forward to learning from you.

PODCASTS

What are the best podcasts to listen to right now? We asked Caroline Smith, KQED's engagement producer for MindShift and Forum, what she recommends. Here are her picks.

STARTER EPISODE

"Neglect of Duty"

On Our Watch is the definition of accountability journalism — the podcast uncovers once-sealed California police records and tells their stories using the voices of people impacted. Each episode is harrowing, but I've especially thought about "Neglect of Duty" every week since it aired, and the human error that caused life-altering harm.

STARTER EPISODE

"Andrea Lee Reads Haruki Murakami"

Andrea Lee's reading of "Barn Burning" on the New Yorker Fiction Podcast was my introduction to Murakami. I often make fun of the way Murakami writes women (to paraphrase, "in the mirror she admired her breasts"), but the man knows how to tell a story that gets under your skin and Lee's reading amplifies the ending's gravitas.

STARTER EPISODE

"Bewitched with Dana Schwartz"

While I only listen to Blank Check episodes on movies I've seen, each episode's two-hour-plus run time pays such loving attention to the featured film while also poking fun. This episode shows how you can both love making fun of the ridiculous 2005 film Bewitched and love it.

Don't Miss This

All Creatures Great and Small, Season 2

I've been waiting with absolute breathless anticipation for the new season of All Creatures Great and Small on Masterpiece. The first season was magnificent: a cozy and comforting balm for the soul during the turmoil of last year. It was KQED's most-watched television program of 2021 and many viewers, including my family and I, couldn't wait for the next episode and took full advantage of streaming opportunities to binge. The new season will also be available to stream on KQED Passport with all episodes available on the night of the premiere (January 9). I can't wait to start our season two marathon and return to the English countryside and the lives of James Herriot, his surrogate family and (most importantly, according to my kids) the animals — both great and small.

Bingeworthy

Vienna Blood, Season 2

Binge the six-episode season of this period-piece psychological thriller on Passport starting January 9, the night of its broadcast premiere. In season two, Dr. Max Libermann, a young psychologist and student of Freud teams up with Detective Inspector Oskar Rheinhardt to solve crimes in 1900s Vienna.

Local History

Moving San Francisco

In case you missed it when it was broadcast in late 2021, you can stream the story of San Francisco transit with KQED Passport. From cable cars that conquered imposing hills to current ride-sharing companies and autonomous vehicles, the documentary takes a look at San Francisco's transit — past and future.

All Creatures Great and Small (New Series) Is Back with a Second Season

As we enter a second year of the global pandemic and confront the imminent impact of climate change and ongoing political crises, All Creatures Great and Small is the perfect escapist show for getting through tough times.

The series, based on the books written by James Herriot, follows young Herriot, a tender and compassionate veterinarian, who moves from bustling Glasgow to the faraway English countryside of Darrowby in season one. Herriot takes a job at a local veterinary practice in the dreamy and idyllic Yorkshire Dales of the 1930s.

Season two begins with James returning to Darrowby after visiting Glasgow, where he's offered an opportunity he might not be able to refuse. But in Darrowby, we're reminded of what makes life in a farming town so special: the communal passion for animals and consideration for each other's well-being. By the end of the first episode, you may find yourself, like me, yearning to hold a newborn baby lamb. You can catch the second season of All Creatures Great and Small starting on Sunday, January 9, at 9pm on KQED 9 (see Passport, page 6, for streaming information). — Sophie Kim, Marketing Communications Intern

DID YOU KNOW?

- In the late 1800s, educated veterinarians were needed to care for urban working horses in San Francisco. In response, the San Francisco College of Veterinary Surgeons and Dentists was founded in 1899 by Dr. E. J. Creely.
- You can visit the place where James Herriot lived, worked and wrote his successful series of books in Thirsk, England. It's called the World of James Herriot.
- James Herriot's real name was James Alfred Wight. He used a pen name because the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons frowned on members who advertised.

JANUARY PICK

Great Performances from Vienna: The New Year's Celebration 2022

Saturday, January 1,
at 8pm on KQED 9

Ring in the new year with an annual KQED broadcast concert tradition. Take a virtual trip to Austria and the Musikverein with the Vienna Philharmonic and host Hugh Bonneville (from Downton Abbey). The concert features Strauss waltzes and more under the baton of guest conductor Daniel Barenboim.

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE

Singin' in the Rain

Saturday, January 8,
at 8pm on KQED 9

A spoof on Hollywood's transition from silent to sound films, this classic award-winning 1952 film follows Don and Lina, two movie stars whose latest film is made into a musical. Only problem: one of them has a terrible voice. It stars Debbie Reynolds and Gene Kelly; KQED favorite Rita Moreno is in it, too.

The Downton Abbey Movie

► Sunday, January 2, at 9pm on KQED 9

Step into the lives of the fabulous Crawley family and their equally fab staff in this 2019 feature-length film. When the film begins, they're preparing for a momentous royal visit from the King and Queen of England. The event triggers delicious scandal, romance and intrigue — and casts doubt on the future of Downton.

Animals with Cameras, a Nature Miniseries

► Wednesday, January 19 and January 26, at 8pm on KQED 9

Yup, you read that correctly. Turtles, sharks, koalas, bats and kangaroos become wildlife cinematographers when they're fitted with lightweight, specially designed cameras. Discover the behaviors they reveal that are new to scientists in this two-parter, which also features some unbridled animal cuteness.

Sustainable Investing includes supporting KQED

EntentVest™ was founded by a team of sustainable investment advisors with deep roots in Impact Investing and portfolio management, as well as climate and environmental science.

CEO Scott Schwartz's new book Investing in a New Climate presents a sustainable approach to investing and living in a new climate.

Adapting to change, includes investment opportunities in the ESG solutions we want to grow—in Energy, Water, Food & Agriculture, Transportation, the Building sector, Artificial Intelligence and Computing. It also has to do with making sustainable investing easier and more accessible.

Learn more about the EntentVest™ platform, mission and how to open an online account at ententvest.com.

Email info@ententvest.com or call 650.933.5100 to speak to an advisor.

Investing in Environmental, Social, Governance (ESG) ETF securities does involve risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Our low-cost fee structure is compared to traditional advisory fees charged to managed accounts.
