MARCH LINEUP

Night of Ideas: More?

Saturday, March 4, at 7pm, at the San Francisco Public Library Main Branch 100 Larkin St, San Francisco, in Person: Free

The Bay Area's biggest celebration of creativity and critical thought is back. This year, dozens of local cultural organizations, leading thinkers and artists contemplate the theme "More?" Join KQED, SFMOMA, the San Francisco Public Library and the Villa Albertine San Francisco, along with artistic curating partner Circuit Network, for an inspiring marathon of talks, performances, food, art and collective imaginations. Full program to be announced.

Paseo Artístico: Muxeres Keepers of Cultura

Saturday, March 11, at 4pm, in Person: Free

Exploring the roots of artistic expression in the Latinx diaspora has led dancer Jessica Recinos and musician Andreina Maldonado to a deeper understanding of self. They join KQED to present dance performances by La Colectiva and Rising Rhythm along with Latin-fusion music from Inti Batey and a lively discussion on how these muxeres have become keepers of cultura.

Kim Stanley Robinson's Half Century Love Affair with the Sierra Nevada

Wednesday, March 15, at 7pm, at the Herbst Theatre, San Francisco
In Person: $35 | in Person + Book: $78.45

Join KQED Live for an intimate conversation with one of California's most inventive authors to discuss writing, hiking, finding hope in an era of climate change and his new book The High Sierra: A Love Story, a personal, cultural and geologic exploration of the place he calls the "best mountain range on Earth."

Rebel Girls Bingo

Thursday, March 23, at 7pm, in Person: $15

KQED Culture Writer Rae Alexandra chronicles the forgotten stories of women who defied the restrictions of their time in her series Rebel Girls. From the enslaved woman who became a celebrity chef to the 1912 sex worker who spoke out about sexism, all of these women shaped the Bay Area as we know it. Learn about them over drinks, laughs and a competitive storytelling bingo game night honoring path-breaking women in Bay Area history.

Hella Caffeinated con Pan

Thursday, March 30, at 7pm, in Person: $15

Can coffee create community? Café con pan is a Latinx custom for catching up with family or bonding with new friends while sipping on some coffee paired with warm conchas (or any pan dulce). Dive into the history and culture of coffee with three Latinx women-owned cafés and bakeries in the Bay Area: San Francisco's Abanico Coffee Roasters, Oakland's Café Con Cariño and Norte 54.

MEMBER BENEFITS

KQED Member Day at the Legion of Honor, San Francisco

Free admission on Friday, March 24, from 9:30am to 5:15pm

Churches, coastlines, gardens, royal palaces, dancing — vibrant works by John Singer Sargent (1856–1925) immerse you in the rich culture of Spain. This exhibition, in its exclusive West Coast stop, is the first to explore the influence of Spanish culture on Sargent's dynamic visual practice. Admission is free on Friday, March 24, to KQED members plus one guest who present their current KQED MemberCard on-site at the tickets desk. Learn more at KQED.org/memberday and famsf.org.

Eric Abrams Joins KQED as the New Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Officer

KQED is honored to welcome Eric Abrams as Chief Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Officer. In this new role at KQED, Abrams will plan and lead an organization-wide strategy to operationalize and embed principles of diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI). He brings expertise from his experience leading DEI initiatives in higher education, where topics such as multiculturalism, intersectionality and unconscious bias first came to prominence. He has spent most of the last two decades in DEI leadership roles at both Stanford University and UC Berkeley.

“Eric will help us achieve our vision of a culture that centers on human dignity, equity and belonging,” says President and CEO Michael Isip. “To truly serve all of the Bay Area’s diverse communities, KQED staff and content must reflect and fully represent our diverse communities and their experiences. This role helps ensure our accountability to make DEI central to how we serve and operate.”

Previously, Abrams worked at the Stanford Graduate School of Education, where he served as Chief Inclusion Officer, and before that served as the Director of Diversity Initiatives at UC Berkeley’s Haas School of Business. He is a regular speaker at conferences and has been a guest on KQED’s Forum and KQED Newsroom, where he discussed the diversity gap at tech companies. Abrams served as a board member at the Making Waves Academy, a charter school in Richmond, California; at 826 Valencia, a nonprofit dedicated to creative and expository writing skills for under-resourced students, in San Francisco; and as the former president of the board of 826 National, the organization’s national network of writing and tutoring centers.

On February 10, Abrams appeared on KQED Newsroom, a weekly news magazine program that views news through a Bay Area lens. As host Priya David Clemens noted, there’s been a wave of diversity efforts across higher education institutions and corporate America. Many of these fall under the banner of DEI. Abrams joined her to discuss what DEI means, why it matters and his views on the best ways to move forward. You can watch the interview at kqed.org/newsroom.

Climate Lessons from Florida for a Storm-Battered California

Californians received a stark reminder this winter of the need to prepare for a changing climate. The state's much-needed rain came in a series of brutal, and deadly, atmospheric rivers. Heavy rains led to floods; winds toppled trees and damaged property; high tides destroyed piers. If this is our new climate reality, what will it take to adapt? That's the subject of this month's radio special from American Public Media, How We Survive: The Rising Sea. Host Amy Scott heads to Miami, another vulnerable coastal city, to dig into the "messiness" of potential solutions, from the high price tags for resilient development, to questions of whether we should even bother with those developments — or simply move elsewhere. Climate lessons from Florida for a storm-battered California, How We Survive: The Rising Sea plays on KQED Public Radio 88.5 FM on Wednesday, March 1, at 10pm with an overnight repeat on Thursday at 1am, or stream it on the KQED App. —Devin Holt, On-Air Digital Programming Assistant

PODCASTS

What are the best podcasts to listen to right now?
We asked Podcast Editor Chris Hambrick for their recommendations.

STARTER EPISODE

"Wacky, Homemade Cars Will Soon Roll Down the Hill in SF's McLaren Park Again"

Got a burning question about some Bay Area phenomena? The Bay Curious podcast comes to the rescue with adventure story answers. This episode captures all the fun from the original Artists' Soap Box Derby and cues up excitement for the revival event.

STARTER EPISODE

"Sal, Sock"

Everything Is Alive features unscripted interviews with inanimate objects. Anyone who imagines that their objects have feelings can live in that reality here. The Sal, Sock episode explores what happens to the sock left behind when his mate goes missing.

STARTER EPISODE

"Akwaaba"

Shole Country is an eight-part audio memoir that follows narrator Afia while she wades through family history and self-discovery to decide where she will live. The writing is intimate, the sound design is lush and the Akwaaba episode sets the scene for the journey with complicated and hilarious family dynamics.

Sanditon on MASTERPIECE

This month brings us one last season of Sanditon on MASTERPIECE. The adaptation of Jane Austen's final, unfinished novel was originally intended to last only one season, but viewers wanted more. Fans of Austen's romances; outspoken, independent female characters; beautiful landscapes and period costumes will find that all here. Will the austere and distant Mr. Colbourne mellow? Will Tom's vision for Sanditon be realized? Will Charlotte and Georgiana find true love, or will they choose unmarried independence? Find out on Sunday, March 19, at 9pm when Season 3 premieres on KQED 9 and is available to stream on Passport. Until then, catch Seasons 1 and 2. I just finished watching them and can't wait until March 19! —Karen Marek, Director, Gift Planning and Endowment

The Movement and the “Madman”: How Two Protests, on Two Coasts, Changed History

In November 1969, two antiwar protests — one in Washington, D.C., and another in San Francisco — were the largest ever in America. They, along with a national moratorium, caused President Nixon to cancel what he called his secret “madman” plans for a massive escalation of the U.S. war in Vietnam, including his threats to use nuclear weapons. At the time, protestors had no idea what they prevented and the lives they saved.

American Experience: The Movement and the “Madman,” which airs on March 28, at 9pm on KQED 9, presents insider accounts from movement leaders and Nixon officials and commentary by historians and dynamic archival footage. It’s an inspiring untold story that offers hope in a time when autocracy threatens democracy, war rages in Ukraine and we are facing a climate catastrophe.

The story has a local angle, too. While researching, local filmmaker Stephen Talbot discovered that the San Francisco event was the largest demonstration ever held in the western U.S.; an estimated 250,000 people attended. KQED was there, too, covering the San Francisco event live in its entirety.

A teenager in 1969, I was tear gassed at the D.C. protest. It was a painful entry into politics but is now a proud moment knowing, from the film, what the march meant in U.S. history. —Ellyn Hamant

DID YOU KNOW? SANDITON: Unfinished Novels

- When Mary Wollstonecraft, mother of Mary Shelley (Frankenstein) died, she left an unfinished novel: Maria, or The Wrongs of Woman, about a woman sent to an asylum by her abusive husband. It’s often viewed as a sequel to the Vindication of the Rights of Woman, a 1792 classic of feminist political theory.
- Raymond Chandler, perhaps best known for creating detective Phillip Marlowe, died before his eighth novel was finished. To mark his 100th birthday, contemporary crime writer Robert B. Parker finished Chandler’s Poodle Springs with the Chandler estate’s blessing.

Isabel and Roy

► Friday, March 17, at 8pm on KQED 9

This half-hour documentary illuminates how Isabel, wife of the late pop art master Roy Lichtenstein, was the family's breadwinner as a prominent interior decorator before he reached stardom. The story of Roy's pre-pop days in Cleveland and the woman who supported him as he developed his signature style is largely unknown — until now.

The Library of Congress Gershwin Prize for Popular Song

► Friday, March 31, at 9pm on KQED 9

Joni Mitchell got her start singing in small venues and went on to become one of the most influential musicians of our time, crossing genres from folk to jazz, classical and rock. Known for her poetic lyrics, Mitchell is also a painter (see her self portrait below). Tune in for an all-star tribute as she receives the 2023 Library of Congress Gershwin Prize for Popular Song, the nation's highest award for influence, impact and achievement.

Furry Friends Forever: Elmo Gets a Puppy New half-hour Sesame Street special premieres Monday, March 13, at 10am on KQED 9

After Elmo and Grover find an adorable puppy named Tango, the three of them
set out on an adventure throughout the neighborhood, meeting
friends Cookie Monster and Abby Cadabby along the way, as they search for the pet adoption fair in hopes of finding Tango her “forever home.”
