Since its founding in 1954, KQED has looked forward and evolved to meet the needs of an ever-changing media landscape. Now, KQED is a leading example of how a community-supported, nonprofit journalism and educational media service can thrive in a digital world. KQED has doubled down on our mission to inform, inspire and involve residents about the issues that matter to us all. Rooted in the Bay Area, and globally relevant, KQED Studios is a research and development lab to develop and pilot fresh, compelling programs to meet the increasing demand of audiences who now spend more than eight hours per day with digital media. In the last year, KQED Studios has launched the video series Beyond the Menu with Cecilia Phillips, telling the backstories of your favorite global dishes; The Latest, a continuously updating news feed podcast with new content throughout the day; and Close All Tabs, hosted by GenZ tech journalist Morgan Sung, which uses irreverent humor and insights to break down the impact of internet culture on our lives.

On April 15, you can look forward to the launch of Hyphenación, hosted by Xorje Olivares: It's a fun yet deep conversational video podcast featuring Latinx millennials navigating adulthood and having easy conversations about hard things. You can find Beyond the Menu on YouTube and The Latest and Close All Tabs wherever you get your podcasts. All three are also available on the KQED App. Hyphenación launches April 15 on YouTube, the KQED App and other podcast platforms. You can also find direct links on kqed.org/kqed-studios.

Donations to the KQED Studios Fund provide working capital to support digital innovation by fueling the design and launch of new podcasts and other digital media. Major support for KQED Studios comes from the Krishnan Shah Family Foundation and Birong Hu.

"I am so proud to support this incubator for new programs," said Ms. Hu. "The enthusiasm and conviction from KQED's leadership is palpable. And, it's reassuring to know there's a really creative team working to keep KQED engaging, relevant, healthy and thriving."

WHAT TO WATCH

Survival of the Fittest: A New Series Explores How Africa's Wildlife Endure Climate Change

In April of 2024, continental North America was witness to a rare astronomical event: a total solar eclipse. Plunging us into darkness for more than four minutes, the cosmic phenomenon served as a reminder that our planet is extraordinary. By our sheer existence, all of the species who call Earth home live in a balance of interconnectedness, so when the temperature of the globe changes, it's felt by living creatures everywhere. This planetary ripple effect is at the forefront of the new three-part series Nature – Katavi: Africa's Fallen Paradise. Filmed in the heart of Africa's Great Rift Valley, the docuseries offers an inside look at how our heating climate impacts even the mightiest of wildlife.

Katavi is a little-known national park spanning more than 3,000 square miles of western Tanzania. In this typically lush paradise, lions, hippos and crocodiles live more or less in harmony. But during a year of unusual circumstances, a rare climactic upheaval transforms the natural dry season into the toughest drought in almost a century, forcing the animals to fight for territory, resources and their lives.

When faced with an unprecedented shift in their environment, the animals devise new survival strategies and the desperation pushes them to the edge of their endurance. Lion cubs face mortal danger from a rogue male lion intent on a takeover while hippos fight viciously for a dwindling river. Even crocodiles, usually capable of outlasting prolonged periods without food or fresh water, fall victim to the intense conditions. When the drought finally breaks, Katavi veers from one extreme to another. Water brings relief and movement for all, but the parched land cannot absorb the heavy rain, causing further peril.

The docuseries is at once a beautiful and fascinating picture of the natural world and an unmissable alarm that as our planet heats, these apocalyptic conditions could become more frequent. Not to be missed, Nature – Katavi: Africa's Fallen Paradise, premieres over three consecutive Wednesdays on April 2, 9 and 16 at 8pm on KQED 9 or you can livestream it on the KQED App. —Elyce Berrigan, Managing Editor

SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE

The Duchess

Saturday, April 5, at 8pm on KQED 9

This 2008 film chronicles the life of the late 18th-century English aristocrat Georgiana Cavendish, Duchess of Devonshire (Keira Knightley). Reviled for her extravagance, her personal life contrasts greatly with public perception. She's trapped in a failed marriage and forced to live with her husband's mistress.

SIMON SCHAMA: THE HOLOCAUST, 80 YEARS ON

► Tuesday, April 22, at 9pm on KQED 9

Eighty years after the liberation of the last concentration camps, renowned historian Sir Simon Schama is confronting the history of the Holocaust. He visits the mass killing sites in Lithuania and makes his first-ever trip to Auschwitz-Birkenau. Featuring an interview with a 98-year-old survivor, the film asks profound questions about what the Holocaust means now.

INDEPENDENT LENS: FREE FOR ALL — THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

► Tuesday, April 29, at 10pm on KQED 9

Tune into the inspiring story of the pioneering women who helped the U.S. public library system shape a nation. The documentary examines how today's dedicated librarians remain dutifully protective of this beloved institution, which continues to be a sanctuary for Americans, despite working in a contentious age of closures and book bans.

MOUNTAIN DETECTIVE, SEASON 3

Watching Mountain Detective is like watching Lord of the Rings — no, really! With its beautiful cinematography of rolling fields and rugged mountain ranges, it makes you feel like you're in Middle Earth instead of the French Alps. Following retired policeman Alex Hugo as he uncovers violence and crime in rural France, Mountain Detective is filled with lovable small town characters paired with plenty of mystery and action to keep things exciting. If you've already binged through other French mysteries like Paris Murders and Astrid, this is the perfect time to catch up on Mountain Detective as Season 3 comes exclusively to Passport April 25, with no broadcast dates planned. —Emma Casley, TV Programming Manager

Joseph Rosendo's Steppin' Out, Season 2

Follow award-winning host Joseph Rosendo to picturesque and ethnically rich destinations, including Cuba, Malaysia, Tanzania and more. Available with Passport April 1.

Weekends with Yankee, Season 9

Explore hidden gems in the New England area. This season features unique experiences like harvesting seaweed on the Belfast Marina. Coming to Passport April 5.

Evilside, Season 1

In a small community on a Finnish island, Johanna becomes the prime suspect in a ritualistic murder. In Finnish with English subtitles. Binge with Passport April 4.

The Future of Nature

There's a growing army of people fighting to save nature. This inspiring series moves exclusively to Passport on April 26.

Greta Thunberg: A Year to Change the World

This revealing series confronts the complexity of what is required to make change happen. Watch before it expires April 22.

Poetry in America, Seasons 1–4

Celebrate National Poetry Month with this series. Season 2, Episode 1, "Urban Love Poem by Marilyn Chin," explores San Francisco history through her poetic works.
