THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

This fall, everyone is going to be talking about The American Revolution, the new six-part film from Ken Burns, Sarah Botstein and David Schmidt. Weaving together a wide variety of perspectives from soldiers, civilians and leaders — famous and forgotten, young and old, native and newcomer, enslaved and free, rich and poor, loyalist and patriot — the film tells how, against the odds, 13 British colonies united in rebellion and won their independence. If you were lucky enough to attend the KQED screening with Ken Burns earlier this year, then you saw that The American Revolution is going to go down in history itself as one of Burns' masterpieces, and it is coming at a truly remarkable time in American history. Streamers get early access, with all six episodes available to binge in the PBS App on the night of the broadcast premiere on November 16. —Meredith Speight, Senior Director, TV Programming

CHECK, PLEASE! BAY AREA

Celebrate the 20th anniversary of Check, Please! Bay Area, the beloved KQED television series that launched on November 3, 2005, with a simple premise: to welcome local diners — not professional food critics — to share their favorite restaurants. Leslie Sbrocco, the grand dame of the Bay Area food and wine scene, has hosted the show since its inception. Her unbridled passion and willingness to let loose with humor and candor has earned her a deeply loyal fan base. Over the course of two decades, Sbrocco (and Check, Please!) have introduced viewers to more than 800 restaurants across more than 300 episodes. Tune in on Thursday, November 6, at 7:30pm on KQED 9 for the special anniversary documentary episode featuring a behind-the-scenes look at the program with highlights from the show's history. All episodes are available to stream for free on demand using the PBS App or by visiting kqed.org/checkplease after their broadcast premieres.
